Keynote Introduction

“Tune into Your Cues: How to Avoid Cue-lessness and Turn Your Interactions Into a Superpower”

Today’s speaker has spent much of her life searching for a secret decoder ring to teach her charisma. As a shy, awkward teenager, she started to hone her people watching skills but it was her first job out of college that really skyrocketed her abilities. Her position as a Live-In Manager at a group home for five intellectually disabled men was the perfect training ground for understanding nonverbal communication, behavior, and people skills.

She is a certified body language trainer, has coached TEDx speakers, and has been featured on The List, an Emmy-winning national television show, and is the 2024 recipient of the Rising Star Award with the Wisconsin National Speaker Association. She and her family have hosted numerous exchange students and she believes that chocolate is the ultimate universal language. She’s here today to help us tune into the cues all around us so we can enhance our communication.

Please welcome, Kristin Bock.

Workshop/Breakout Session Introduction

Kristin's "Not Fancy" intro is more like 3 fun facts:

1. Kristin grew up in Wisconsin which means she's both Midwest nice and enjoys a good hunk of cheese!
2. She's addicted to hosting exchange students which really means her "faraway kids" are the perfect excuse to travel and see the world.
3. She believes that showing civility, including to those with differing viewpoints, is needed now more than ever. Or, as her grandpa used to say, "We're all quirky different, so you better know how to relate"!

Please welcome, Kristin Bock.
